

talk on this matter (applause in the Senate).
Senator Davis, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, renewed his motion to adjourn until 10 o'clock to-morrow. The yeas and nays were called for by a vote of 32 to 24 the Senate at 5 P. M. adjourned until 10 o'clock to-morrow.

SENATOR HOAR'S SPEECH.

When the venerable Senator from Massachusetts, Mr. Hoar, arose to follow Mr. Turner, there was a visible stir in the audience for the conservatism of Senator from Massachusetts is well known. His first sentence fell from his lips slowly and distinctly and showed that he was for peace if peace could be had. He said that he wanted to make a few observations quickly and calmly and in the manner of a court dealing with the great problems of public welfare and the honor of the nation. He thought it was not the place for passionate rhetoric, loud declamation, the clapping of hands and the stamping of feet, but rather it was the place for absolute deliberation that would command such a scene and such a decision.

HE CALM AND DELIBERATE.

He then urged that the report of the treaty and oppression in Cuba immediately warranted some measures that would bring peace, but he doubted the wisdom of rushing headlong into war. Every other diplomatic effort had been made to bring about an honorable peace and cessation of hostilities. He recalled the utterances of his fellow Senators who had told of the horrors surrounding the reconcentrados and he said that they were the utterances of men, but whether, said he, "I differ with their utterances, I have no doubt, but the profoundest respect for which brought these utterances to the floor of the Senate." He then with a voice trembling with emotion and profound stillness in the Senate chamber, he added: "If this country is to do a great act of justice, let us do it calmly and deliberately."

HE SUBMITTERS OF WAR.

Senator Hoar argued that the attacks on the President were ill advised and amounted to a condemnation of the policy of the executive. He said that the Congress should encourage the President in his efforts for peace, so long as peace could be had with honor. Then, after paying a tribute to the President, the Senator said that the men who suffered by war were not the men who profited from it, and that the men who reap the benefits from wars were a few and the poor sufferers were the many. He said that the Senators who realize the horrors of war, the poor peasants, taken away from home and drifted, the widow whose husband is taken away, that suffer most may be necessary now, but I am sure it will be a long time before we will be able to do it.

HE WAS A PURSUING FORCE.

He then remarked that he could not say with an assertion made by a Senator on the floor who lightly said that was needed once in a while as a purging force. He said that war meant the addition of untold millions to the debt of the country, the piling up of mountains high and would mean and dissolution to thousands of people.

ENDING BY THE PRESIDENT.

He said and thank the President of the United States for his sublime self-restraint in this emergency and for holding so far as he could the step towards peace. Those who love and stand by him will not be disturbed that the influence of his fame will be diminished in the eyes of our posterity by his action at this time.

Hoar said that the name of McKinley would be linked with other names of notable self-restraint which have characterized the American people in momentous hours.

USE DISGRACE RECALLED.

Hoar recalled the fact that he had seen the House during the period of a year or two in Cuba. He added that in those days the Senators did not throw books at each other and call each other fools. He recalled the tremendous pressure that was put upon President Grant to take action in the then pending Cuban question and regarded the self-restraint which Grant at that time conducted, as one of his strongest claims to fame.

"I grow old and then blooded," said Hoar. "I like to read the stories of self-restraint."

Hoar said he could not agree with the position taken by Mr. Foraker, that the action of the belligerency of the Congressmen even two years ago would have resulted in serious trouble between the United States and Spain. He said that the action would have given Spain the search for ships and he did not think it would have done the nation the slightest good.

HE PRAISE TO MR. KINLEY.

The Senator gave high praise to President McKinley for his masterly presentation of the condition in the island as out in his message to Congress and said that he was in hearty accord with the President when he advised against the recognition of the insurgent government, if a government.

He recognized the insurgents' and said that he would be to ignore our whole duty and we cannot recognize that in the face of the history of the world. We need sympathy of the civilized world in the case which seems so near to us and we can only keep it by recognizing the nations.

POPULATION OF CUBA.

He cited certain discrepancies as to the number of sympathizers in Cuba, the present government and said that Senator Foraker in his speech yesterday had fixed the number at 400,000, when the committee of which the President was presumably the organ, the number at one-third of the population.

APPEALS TO POWERS.

Spain Exchanges Notes With European Capitals on Situation.

Sentiment in Foreign Quarters of Action Thus Far Taken Makes War Inevitable.

Understood That Present Movement is Not so Mild as That With President McKinley by the Powers a Week Ago---Senor Polo to be Ordered to Withdraw.

Washington, April 14. It was learned tonight in high diplomatic quarters that an exchange of notes had begun between the European capitals with a view to making representations on the Spanish American situation. In the same connection an informal meeting of the ambassadors and ministers in this city of the six great powers, was held this morning. Several of the foreign establishments received cable advice from their governments tonight as to the opening of the exchange of notes. This had been anticipated in view of the prevailing sentiment in all the foreign quarters here that the action thus far taken in Congress made war inevitable. This common opinion had been officially reported to the several European capitals and it was doubtless instrumental in starting the active exchange between the great powers today. The same exchange occurred a week ago as a preliminary to the joint note of the great powers addressed to President McKinley mildly urging a peaceful settlement with Spain. It is understood, however, that the present movement is not of the same mild character as the former one. Spain is not only with the opening of the exchange word came from Madrid that the Spanish government was about to issue another appeal to the great powers of Europe.

APPEAL TO THE POWERS OF EUROPE.

It is understood that this appeal is in the nature of a concerted action of the powers and there is apparent agreement in all quarters that the appeal will receive favorable consideration. It is said that Spain's appeal will reiterate her grievances against the United States, stating in detail the many concessions she has made and pointing out that it was in response to the urgent representation of the six great powers that the last concession of an amnesty was granted. If the powers determine to act their influence will probably be particularly directed toward inducing the United States to grant Spain subsequent time within which to try the amnesty recently proclaimed. During the recent joint action of the powers their main influence was exerted at Madrid, the only action at Washington being the courteous expression of hope of peace. But the present movement contemplates that the influence shall be exerted at Washington rather than at Madrid as it is the common belief in diplomatic quarters that the Madrid authorities have reached the limit of concessions and should now be given adequate time to try what they and the powers have offered as a means of restoring peace in Cuba.

DISPOSITION OF POWERS.

There is no suggestion, however, that this influence at present will be of a material character, but it is expected to be an assertion of all the moral influence of the powers in checking tendencies which it is believed inevitably will lead to war. Up to a late hour tonight word had not been received at any of the various foreign establishments that any common basis of joint action had been reached, although it was the general impression that there would be a little difficulty in arriving at this common ground in view of the prevailing sentiment abroad. It is not certain, however, that all of the powers are ready for a step of this character. Germany has at this shown a disposition to avoid exerting strong influence on the United States. Russia is also thought to be somewhat indifferent. France and Austria are most active in the present movement as they were the former one. Whether all of the six great powers are ready to join in the movement is in doubt and without this united action it is felt that the force of any such influence will be lost.

THE SPANISH CORTES.

The Spanish minister had not been officially advised up to a late hour tonight that the meeting of the Spanish Cortes had been adjourned. It was learned that the Cortes would not meet until the 15th inst. It is understood that the Spanish government is about to issue another appeal to the great powers of Europe. It is also understood that the Spanish government is about to issue another appeal to the great powers of Europe. It is also understood that the Spanish government is about to issue another appeal to the great powers of Europe.

putting the losses of war the death of soldiers and battleships can be replaced by the loss of a vessel and the loss of a nation. The records of naval war are not so comforting. $342,000 Paid For the Rebuilt Wreck Merrimack—She Cost Owners
Less Than $200,000—$186,000
Asked of Uncle Sam for the Steam Pilot Boat—New York—Cost
Less Than $95,000.

The Naval Board on Auxiliary Cruisers wishes the statement to be made that it had nothing to do with the purchase of the steamship Merrimack for a collier. The purchase was made by another board and the board at New York knew nothing of it until it was announced in the newspapers. Information has come to a member of the board that the Merrimack was bought at auction for $18,000 by T. Hogan & Sons when she was the wreck of the Norwegian freighter Solvaig, 2200 tons, built at Newcastle in 1894; that her new owners, in rebuilding her for their Lone Star line to Galveston, to comply with the law in order to get an American register, made improvements which they valued at three times what they had paid for her, making the total cost to them $182,000, and that the price the government now pays for her is $342,000. The person who furnished this information said that the government could have bought a new American steamship much better adapted for a collier for $300,000.

The authority for the above statement furnished some other interesting information. In reference to the steam pilot boat New York, New Jersey and Sandy Hook pilots in a set of patriotic resolutions, it was stated that the price at which it was offered was $185,000 and that she cost originally between $85,000 and $95,000. In reference to the Merrimack, it was stated that every effort was made by the owners to secure the board's recommendation, and when this was finally refused the vessel was put in dry dock, where she is now, to be thoroughly overhauled and repaired. When the repairs are made the owners hope to have her reinspected.

According to a rule made by the board all repairs that have to be made upon the vessel purchased must be paid of by the tender. Besides this, the board requires that the Government shall be credited with all brokerage in paying for the vessel purchased. By being compelled to observe this rule one man who has sold some vessels to the Government has lost all the profits from his sales in paying for repairs that had to be made. As an example of what the board has had to contend with, it was stated that one vessel which has been engaged in the Klondike trade, has been offered to the board five times, at different prices, by five different members of the firm which owns the vessel. The highest price was $300,000, and the lowest between $115,000 and $150,000.

Members of the board say that it is not true that the government has paid $300,000 for a yacht that only cost $250,000 to build. One of the board told a Sun reporter that the yacht in question was purchased at a price $45,000 less than it cost to build her and $100,000 less than was asked for her.

The board has recommended to the Navy Department the steam pilot boat Philadelphia for a scout boat. She was offered at $100,000, but it was stated that she was recommended at much less than that. It was also stated that the board has decided, in obedience to the latest order from the Secretary of the Navy to reconstruct six more vessels to be used as auxiliary cruisers, not to select all six from the fleet of the Merchants' and Miners' Transportation Company of Baltimore. Some of the vessels of this fleet will be recommended, as well as the Venezuela of the Red D line, two from the fleet of the Maine Steamship Company, probably the John English and one other, and some of the best of the remaining Mallory liners.

The board inspected the British tramp freight steamer Southern for the purpose of reporting to the Navy Department whether or not she would do for a collier. The Southern is a single screw boat owned by Lewis Luckenbach. The Government wants six colliers, and has already purchased four—the Lebanon, Sterling, Saturn and Merrimack. Lieut. Sargent was detached from the board and ordered to report on board the new auxiliary cruiser Yosemite, formerly the Mallory liner El Sud.

It is stated that Colonel Morrell is considering the advisability of establishing a coaching line from Bar Harbor around the "twenty-two mile drive," taking in Seal and Northeast Harbor, Spinesville and adjacent points. On the itinerary there will be four relays, the tally-hos starting from the Malvern and finishing within two hours. Colonel Morrell is going to take a large stable down East with him and coaching will be given a great impetus at this popular resort—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Bar Harbor Record: The story of the whale recently seen in Frenchman's Bay, like the tale of the three black crows, has improved very much by repetition. The latest version we have come across, describes the heroics of the adventure as two lobster fishermen, Andrew Stafford and L. S. Smith, who spied the great fish just as they were hauling in their lobster traps. It also incidentally mentions that the men had no harpoons which would seem to indicate negligence on their part for they followed the whale in the hope that they might meet other lobster fishermen who were properly equipped with guns and harpoons. We wonder if our fishermen hunt the wily crustacean with harpoon and gun?

The city has granted all the ways asked by the company wishing to build a new wooden mill below the pumping station, but there is some delay in going ahead with the plans in waiting the action of owns the land and water privilege.

The demand for Indians for driving on Penabscot and Kennebec waters is said to be much less this spring than usual and only a few of the tribe have engaged to go. There may be a mill later on as in former years many drivers have been hired from the island.

ANOTHER TRADITION GOES.

Harvard Seniors Give Up the Old Tree "Scrap"

The Harvard senior class has decided by a vote of 49 to 9 to give up the old tree exercises and substitute in place of their exercises around the John Harvard statue in the dorm.

The old "scrap" so dear to all previous classes is thus given up, with the traditions that have centered around the old Liberty tree by Holden chapel. As the class spirit at Harvard has more and more died out, the hold of the exercises upon the undergraduates seems to have gradually decreased; so that this year the exercises for which the class of '97 made such a hard fight will be completely abandoned.

There were but few objections made to the removal, and a motion to decide the matter by a postal vote was voted down, the reason being that though only about an eighth of the class was present, the rest should not be considered because they had a chance to be present both at last night's meeting and a previous meeting. It seems to be that class feeling has fallen so low that but few are any longer interested in the doings of a class.

The class day committee hopes to make the new exercises around the John Harvard statue proper and dignified, so that not even the most fastidious can offer any objections on the ground of roughness; in fact, there is to be no commemoration of any kind.

The cheering of the different classes and the singing of "Fair Harvard" is all that is preserved of the old exercises, and that will of necessity be less impressive because of the enlarged space and the scattering of the crowd standing around the statue.

Harvard Seniors Give Up the Old

Thus as gone one more of Harvard's old traditions, the "Army and Navy Club," the old class base ball celebration, are already forgotten; Bloody Monday night is a withered relic, spasmodically revived with indifference, and now the old "scrap" at the tree is abandoned, too.

ong these varieties we have found use. Since the cabbage worm together that the white butterfly lays the eggs of the cabbage worm en there are other cabbages on her eggs may be laid. But it is ter to grow several kinds of cab-and rely on keeping the cabbage s in check either by trapping the millers that lay the eggs, or by ting fine wheat flour on the heads the worms are hatched. The miller

Crows and Corn.

correspondent of Country Gentle ys in regard to preventing crows pulling corn. What will prevent section seems to fail in others. In otom images and twine are played The crows have become accustomed them and will not respect them f my neighbors told me he left his ng on a twine pole while he to his dinner. When he came back nd a blackbird sitting on his coat antive to others pulling his corn give what is effectual with me is so simple all may try it. Take wspapers, some five or more to the lay them on the ground, only one ess, put a lump of earth or stone middle so the ends may move with the wind. Put them on elevated places if the ground is uneven, as the rain and dew will soon dry out, so the crops can move with the wind. You can renew them occasionally if required.

This I think will be effectual in sections where it is not already played out. A neighbor had a field adjoining mine and images, twine, tin and shingles failed.
He had to replant several times, while papers protected mine, not a single plant being harmed. This remedy is also effectual to keep woodchucks and rabbits from beans and peas.

What Others Say

It is stated that as a rule good sugar beets can be grown on any soil which will produce a satisfactory crop of wheat, corn or potatoes. Fairly level soil, well drained, is a central for best results.

Go slow about using a heavy roller on damp ground in the spring, when rains are frequent, remarks The Farm Journal.

As to the green tomato worm, Vick says the custom is to inspect the plants frequently and remove the worms by hand and destroy them. They are large, plainly to be seen and never in great numbers.

"The tendency now is to plant and till our head crops in drills rather than in hills, and wholly to discard the hand hoe, and to make such culture really effective and leave the field weedless until harvest the horse weeder is really a necessity," says an Ohio Farmer correspondent.

Oats and barley were exported in greatly increased quantities last year to meet foreign deficiencies. Rye also shows a notable gain.

Croquettes.

The secret of having croquettes firm lies in their being mixed for a long time. The meat should be chopped very fine after being freed from all fat and gristle and about a half pint of milk allowed to each pint of meat. The milk should be put over the fire while a tablespoonful of butter and 2 tablespoonfuls of flour are rubbed together. The hot milk is then added, and the whole cooked to a thick smooth paste. Meantime, to a pint of chopped meat is added a tablespoonful of chopped parsley, salt and pepper to taste the grated rind of a lemon and a teaspoonful of onion juice if that is liked, or some cooks simply rub a halved onion over the mixing bowl. The seasoned meat is then mixed into the paste and the whole turned out to cool. The meat should be allowed to stand for at least 2 hours before it is molded into croquettes. Dip first in eggs, then in bread crumbs, and fry in smoking hot fat. Powdered shredded biscuits will be found a pleasant variety to the bread crumbs. It is a caution, by the way, in the use of these biscuits, where bread crumbs are required, that they are very unsuccessful in escalloped tomatoes. They are too starchy, evidently, to be of use there, and they form a gummy mass that is not appetizing.—New York Post

Simple Baby Lamp

Secure an ordinary quart size red Rhine wine bottle and by gently tapping on the bottom thereof break out enough glass to allow the insertion of a candle. A hammer can be used for this purpose, if a little care be taken. Then wrap a piece of ruber paper all around the bottle, securing same by paste or musilage. The lamp is now ready for use, and by standing the bottle on a triangle of burned matches and lighting the candle, will burn without any trimming of wick and other oil lamp inconveniences. The little white light emanating from the top will do absolutely no harm.—New York Mail and Express.

TYPES OF POTATOES.

Cutting for seed as determined by the shape of the tuber.

In some sections many farmers give unqualified praise to the machines for cutting potatoes. Others are disappointed and the seed pieces will not come up and there are too many mistakes in the field. Rural New York explains the cause of these as follows:

The reason for this is quite easy to make. The "eye" or bud from which the little plant must grow must be kept as near the center of the tuber as possible and the "eye" must be kept as near the center of the tuber as possible.

Now, if all the roots are well formed. Now, if all the roots are well formed.

COLLEGE ATHLETICS.

The Harvard varsity football schedule provides for only eight games, two of which, the annual West Point game and the Yale game, are out of town. Cornell dropped because Capt. Dibblee did not want to take the eleven on a long trip to Ithaca. As Cornell did not care to come to Cambridge, a game with the Indians was arranged instead. The schedule:

Oct. 1—Williams at Cambridge.

5—Bowdoin at Cambridge.

8—Dartmouth at Cambridge.

12—Amherst at Cambridge.

15—West Point at West Point.

20—Carleton Indians at Cambridge.

Nov. 5—U. of P. at Cambridge.

19—Yale at New Haven.

An important shake-up was made in the Yale varsity crew Wednesday afternoon by Bob Cook. Capt. Whitney, who has been rowing No. 2, was put at bow, and Wickes, a member of last year's team, was put in at No. 2. Wickes, who has been rowing bow, was at in the list of subs. He has not been in good physical condition, and recently gained a tendon in his leg, which will keep him out of the boat for some time. Wickes is a clever oarsman, and almost as good a man as Williams, and the change may be permanent.

Cook has made several other experiments in the last two days. McGee has been tried at both No. 5 and No. 6, and then has been shifted from No. 6 to No. 5, in place of Cross. The changes have not proved satisfactory, and the fight has been arranged in the same order as before, with the exception of No. 1 and bow oar.

Cornell wanted the varsity crew rowed June 28, but Yale and Harvard preferred June 30. It is finally agreed to compromise on June 25. This is earlier than Yale and Harvard have been accustomed to row races, but the concession was made by Cornell because she has another race row with Columbia and Pennsylvania.

SUPREME COURT.

Case of Betts vs. Maney on Trial—Decision From the Law Court.

On Thursday there was on trial in the Supreme Court the case of Chesley A. Betts vs. Hannah Maney.

In this action the plaintiff sues for $550,000, the amount for which he agreed to build a house for plaintiff in 1897 and the plaintiff says: That the husband of defendant called on him and asked him to go and see his wife (the defendant) who was intending to erect a tenement house, he did so and the defendant told him what kind of a house she wanted and how constructed, that after some conversation he made a rough draft, showing, as he says, just what defendant wanted and he called upon her again and entered into a contract with her to erect the house for her, she furnishing all materials and the plaintiff the labor for the sum of $550, according to the plan as drafted by him.

That she was to keep plenty of lumber on hand at all times so that no delay be made in the work; that he put on a crew and from the time of beginning there was delay in furnishing materials; that he was obliged to make many alterations in the plans; that he asked for money on account to pay his workmen, which the defendant agreed to when the contract was made, and that all he could obtain was $125 and that in consequence he was obliged to take his men off the house for four days and that finally when he resumed work he told the defendant that as he had been so hampered and interfered with in his work by refusal to furnish materials and so many changes having been made from the original plans, if he finished the house it was to be done by the day; that the defendant thereupon told him to go ahead and complete it, which he did, and when the house was completed he called upon the defendant for payment but was unable to find her, and he then went to her husband and demanded pay, who told him he would see him in Purgatory before he would pay a cent, and that he then authorized this action by which he seeks to recover the sum due him.

Martin & Cook for plaintiff.

J. E. Robinson and L. C. Stearns for defendant.

AGAIN DECIDED.

From the law court yesterday was received the verdict in the case of Alphonso S. Rand vs. Henry W. Eaton. The facts in this case, which has been twice tried, are as follows:

In January, 1894, Eaton, the defendant, recovered judgment against Rand, in the Supreme Judicial court in Hancock county for $75.47 debt and $66.45 costs of suit, and upon said judgment execution issued in due course and that on March 5 of the same year Rand paid the full amount of the judgment to Eaton in hand at the Rockaway House in Bangor; that notwithstanding this fact, the said Eaton caused said execution to be levied upon certain of the property of said Rand, by a deputy sheriff of this county, whereby the said property of Rand was lost to him and he alleges damages in the sum of $800.

Upon the first trial of this action a verdict was rendered for the plaintiff for $300, and a motion was filed by Eaton for new trial, which motion was sustained by the law court and a new trial granted; the case was tried again in October term, 1896, and in that trial the defendant attacked the integrity of the receipt in full introduced by Rand as having been given him by Eaton at the time the settlement was alleged to have taken place at the Rockaway House, and Eaton claimed that no money was paid him at all; that Rand told him he was ready to pay in full and wrote a receipt for the amount of the judgment, to-wit, $142.07, and that after he had signed the receipt Rand said he would step out of the room a moment, and as he did not return Eaton became alarmed, and on looking around for the receipt, which he had placed upon the table in the room, found that it had disappeared; and that he then directed his counsel to collect the judgment which he did by levy, as aforesaid. The second trial resulted in a verdict for the plaintiff, Rand, for the sum of $334.09.

Eaton's counsel filed a general motion for a new trial, which was argued before the law term for the western district, 1897, having been transferred from this district and the decision of the law court announced today is as follows:

STATE OF MAINE.

Pembroke case.

Alphonso S. Rand vs. Henry W. Eaton.

Rescript by Savage, J. (No opinion).

This case has been before the court on a similar motion once before, and after a careful examination of the testimony, the court became satisfied that the verdict for the plaintiff was clearly wrong for reasons which were briefly and tersely stated in the receipt. The testimony in the latter trial was substantially the same as that which we have once before considered, and we see no sufficient reason to modify or reverse the conclusion at which the court arrived when the case was presented upon the former motion. Our attention has not been called to any new evidence which would justify a different conclusion. We are not unmindful of the fact that two juries have given verdict for the plaintiff. Still our duty is none the less imperative, when we are satisfied as we are, that the verdict is clearly wrong.

Motion sustained.

New trial granted.

Hutchings, Townsend, Carleton for plaintiff.

T. H. Gilpin for defendant.
